Reaffirmation continues

In 2011-12, JCC continued preparing for its 2013 reaffirmation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. The year was spent completing the Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP), drafting a focused report, and preparing for the October on-site visit by SACS reviewers. The on-site visit resulted in only one recommendation related to faculty credentials for senior administrators to address. Over the next five years, the College will continue implementing its QEP, titled “On the Write Path.” The plan, which was created with broad-based campus and community input, focuses on enhancing existing courses that emphasize writing instruction and developing new writing intensive courses. The plan also provides for supplemental resources, such as the new Writing Studio, to assist students in discovering and developing a writing voice. Both formative and summative assessments will be used to measure the implementation and outcomes of the QEP.

QEP Mission Statement

JCC’s Quality Enhancement Plan will evolve curriculum and coordinate campus resources to empower students with improved written communication. Our students have a voice, and our QEP will help them discover, develop, and employ that voice in their academic, professional, and personal lives.
A Message from the President

David N. Johnson, Ed.D

As we enter into JCC’s 44th year of providing educational opportunities, I am glad to take a moment to thank you for being a part of our success this past year. We could not be publishing this positive report of accomplishments without supporters like you.

By reflecting on 2011-12, I am reminded of many examples of academic success and leadership by our students, faculty, and staff. This year has been a time focused on relationship building to help us better serve our students in their educational journey.

Our major accomplishment for 2012 was the preparation for and completion of our reaffirmation visit, a process that involved much hard work by the entire College. The reaffirmation project allowed for the creation of our outstanding Quality Enhancement Plan, an effort that brought the entire institution together while working for the common goal of improved writing.

We are creating the right path to help our students achieve success. From new degree programs that meet today’s job demands to developing certification courses local employers need, we are finding new opportunities to move our institution forward.

I am extremely proud of all the good things happening at JCC. And as we continue to work together, I look forward to greater accomplishments in the future.

David N. Johnson, Ed.D
President
As I embark on my fifth term as a JCC trustee, I am so proud to serve this fine institution of higher education.

I am honored to represent an institution that creates success and opportunities for others. It has been a privilege to serve as chair of a very dedicated and hardworking group of fellow trustees.

I am a firm believer in JCC’s mission, which is to provide accessible, high-quality educational and community enrichment opportunities for the successful development of learners. As I hear firsthand the challenges and struggles many of our students face, it is so humbling to see them achieve the ultimate success when they walk across the stage and receive their diplomas at graduation.

JCC also plays a vital role in our county’s ability to grow and prosper. One of the greatest assets of our community college is our ability to listen to our local employers and develop training that meets their needs and ultimately enhance the quality of life in Johnston County.

Through the success of our students, faculty, and staff, JCC continues to prove it is achieving its mission. We should all be very proud of JCC’s accomplishments to date and the success that is yet to come.

Johnston Community College held its annual Legislative Breakfast Monday, May 7 in the Great Hall of the Paul A. Johnston Auditorium on the main campus in Smithfield.

Federal, state, and county leaders, community college representatives, JCC students, and faculty and staff attended the event, including N.C. Rep. Leo Daughtry, N.C. Rep. James Langdon, and Jeff Carver, vice chairman of the Johnston County Board of Commissioners. Also in attendance were district representatives for U.S. Sen. Richard Burr and Congresswoman Renee Ellmers.

The audience heard testimonials from student ambassadors Kameron Wood of Selma, Katherine Robbs of Clayton, and Rebecca Cook of Princeton who shared how JCC is helping them to achieve their educational and career goals.

“JCC and the student ambassador program have been a wonderful experience this past year,” said Robbs, who will graduate with an associate in science degree in May 2013. “I’ve gotten the chance to meet many new people and although I am sad to say this coming year will be my last at JCC, I can honestly say that this is only the beginning of my educational journey.”

JCC President David Johnson thanked the legislative guests for their support and stressed the need for state leaders to restore some $80 million in recent management flexibility cuts to the state’s 58 community colleges.
Polymer Group, Inc. (PGI) is the recipient of the JCC 2011 Business and Industry Partner Award.

The award was presented February 9 at the Breakfast before Business event, which was hosted by the JCC Foundation, the JCC Economic and Community Development staff, and the Johnston County Association of Chambers of Commerce. Held in the Great Hall of the Paul A. Johnston Auditorium, the event was sponsored by Pierce Group Benefits, BB&T, First Citizens Bank, Four Oaks Bank, and KS Bank.

Over the past two years, JCC has assisted PGI with two customized training projects to better train its employees in safety, maintenance, computers, leadership, and other skills. PGI supports the College Foundation and has a scholarship endowment that has awarded 10 scholarships to JCC students since 2004. PGI encourages its employees to earn college degrees by offering a tuition reimbursement program.

“PGI greatly respects our partnership with Johnston Community College,” said Rich Towler, human resources manager at PGI’s Benson facility. “Supporting higher education strengthens the communities in which we operate and having an active partnership allows for the community college system to assist private industry, like PGI, with current training needs and initiatives.”

PGI is a global leader in engineered materials, focused on the production of nonwovens for the hygiene, wipes, medical and industrial markets. The company has more than 3,000 employees worldwide with nearly 300 locally in Benson.
Howell Woods Environmental Learning Center

Some 700 patrons of all ages visited the College’s unique 2,800-acre Howell Woods Environmental Learning Center for the annual Howell Woodstock celebration in November. About 50 exhibitors, vendors, and volunteers displayed their wares and entertained the crowd.

Arboretum

In 2012, Arboretum volunteers logged more than 1,300 hours tending the gardens and donated more than 1,000 pounds of food to the Food Closet at Centenary United Methodist Church and the Soup Kitchen at First Baptist Church.

Frank Creech Art Gallery

From September 2011 to November 2012, the gallery featured 11 exhibits from a variety of local and regional artists showcasing numerous art forms including paintings, sculpture, and photography.
Performing Arts

Through its Concert Series and Country Music Showcase, the Performing Arts at JCC brings some of music’s most recognizable names and the area’s talented aspiring artists to the stage at the 1,000-seat Paul A. Johnston Auditorium.

In 2011-2012, JCC’s Performing Arts hosted:

• 263 events and approximately 100,000 people at the Paul A. Johnston Auditorium
• 6 Country Music Show runs for a total of 20 shows
• 12 Concert Series events

Congratulations to the Class of 2012

JCC awarded a record 547 associate degrees and diplomas at its commencement ceremonies on May 16 and 17.

Renee Batts, education consultant-health sciences academic programs from the North Carolina Community College System, delivered the commencement address to Monday’s health sciences graduates. Dr. Barry Drum, chaplain and religious studies instructor at North Carolina Wesleyan College, gave the general commencement speech at Tuesday’s ceremony. James Hodge of Newton Grove, who earned an associate degree in paralegal technology, received the President’s Award for his scholastic achievement and leadership. Marjorie West of Dunn, who earned associate degrees in medical office administration and office administration, received the Citizenship Award for her leadership and service to fellow students.

In 2011-12, 145 students earned their GED and eight students received their Adult High School diplomas from JCC.
JCC selects 15 up-and-coming student leaders each year to serve as its prestigious student ambassadors. The students receive paid tuition for the year through private monies given to the College Foundation. In return, the student ambassadors are involved in a number of Foundation special events and student activities on campus to foster their leadership skills.

It’s hard to ignore Nate Jones’s passion for Johnston Community College.

“It’s been fantastic. If you don’t know exactly what you want to do in the future, the community college is a great place to find yourself,” says Jones, 21. “I definitely found myself at JCC.”

With an obvious zeal for learning and a determination for success, Jones is JCC’s Academic Excellence Award recipient for 2012.

In 2009, Jones, a Clayton resident, enrolled at JCC thinking he wanted to study music. Thanks to his educational experience here and the guidance of a few mentors along the way Jones decided to move to New York after graduation in May to study communications.

“My passion is communications and the collaborative effort that goes on behind the scenes,” he says. “I think it’s the best medium for all facets of art to bring their skills and talents together to create something larger than themselves.”

In 2010-11, Jones served as the president of the college’s Phi Theta Kappa honor society, a position he says strengthened his leadership skills.

“It’s been a great opportunity to promote the community college option,” Jones says. “You get to work with the best and brightest at JCC, and it’s been a wonderful avenue to mingle with other students.”
Outstanding Instructor: David Oliver

It’s obvious that David Oliver was born to teach.
Whether it’s in the classroom at Johnston Community College, in combat in the Army Reserve, or in Sunday School at Coats Community Church, Oliver loves to help others learn new information.

“I started my teaching career in 1993, and I’ve literally taught every age from three years old and up,” Oliver says.

Oliver’s dedication to education is one reason he is the 2012 Earl C. and Doris F. Helms Excellence in Teaching Endowment recipient at JCC.

“I love seeing the light bulb when a student comprehends a concept after you’ve tried different ways to get the concept across to them,” the Erwin native says. “To me, that’s the greatest reward.”

Since 1999, Oliver has taught networking technology at JCC. He’s also a member of the Army Reserve and teaches antiterrorism, safety, and other courses to soldiers. “The best part of my job has always been the students,” Oliver says. “They make it fun, and I’ve enjoyed dealing with the myriad of experiences they bring to the table. I learn new methods from them just as much as they learn from me.”

Outstanding Staffer: Jackie Page

Jackie Page is so thankful she was hired at Johnston Community College nine years ago.

“Something just told me JCC is the right place to be,” she said recently. “There is so much camaraderie and fellowship here at the college. It’s such a great place to work.”

A resident of Benson, Page is the recipient of the 2012 Rudolph A. Howell Outstanding Staff Person Award.

A graduate of JCC, Page is a records registration specialist in the Student Services division. She spends most of her time entering student registration data, assisting students with transcript requests, and answering general registration questions.

Christina Wilson, an admissions coordinator, said Page is conscientious and is always eager to help. “Jackie is friendly, hardworking, and always has a smile on her face,” Wilson said.

Page said she was surprised but humbled by her honor. “I’m so grateful for the recognition,” she said. “I’m very appreciative for the opportunity to work at JCC. I’ve developed so many special relationships, and it’s been a really wonderful experience that I hope will continue.”
Success Testimonials

Dewana Hartley

“I knew no better way to honor a kind caring educator, the institution I dearly love, and the students I believe in than to share the love and kindness I have been given.”

—Dewana Hartley, JCC alumnae and instructor who started an annual scholarship with the JCC Foundation in 2012

Jose Gonzalez

“I always wanted to get my associate’s degree in emergency medical science and when I found out I could get it at JCC I decided to continue pursuing my goals. The instructors are there to help and that was really helpful and made me have a really good community college experience.”

—Jose Gonzalez, first graduate of JCC’s emergency medical science degree program in 2012 and current Johnston County paramedic

Rosa Andrews

“At Johnston Community College, community is our middle name. In my position as director of the Small Business Center, I strive to provide current and potential small business owners with the education and resources to make their businesses successful. Community partnerships are crucial to my work and to the mission of JCC.

—Rosa Andrews, director of economic development and recipient of the 2011 Athena Award given by the Greater Smithfield-Selma Area Chamber of Commerce

Allen Strader

“JCC has given me a new start. With the help and support of the instructors, I not only have knowledge but confidence in my abilities.”

—Allen Strader, author of short story published in the 2011 Phi Theta Kappa’s Nota Bene, honors anthology, current student pursuing teaching degree in the Wells Fargo Partnership East program
Gifts to the JCC Foundation support the College in many ways including scholarships, grants, faculty and teaching support, student leadership, the Arboretum, Howell Woods, and the Performing Arts.
The JCC Foundation celebrated its 30th anniversary in 2012, and on behalf of the Foundation Board of Directors, Dr. David Johnson, and the College trustees, I want to express my sincere thanks for the support you have shown these past 30 years. This year is bittersweet as my presidency ended June 30, 2012, but I am fortunate to have led such an outstanding organization.

During my tenure as Foundation Board president, I have been able to serve alongside a committed Board of Directors, two devoted college presidents, and a dedicated Foundation staff. I am thankful for the greater understanding I have of this fine institution and the many ways in which JCC touches our students and communities through exceptional instruction and outstanding cultural and personal enrichment opportunities.

Many of these opportunities would not be possible without support from our private donors. In 2011-12, the Foundation’s assets grew nearly 12 percent from $5,133,715 to $5,725,395 as of June 30, 2012. More than $70,000 was raised as part of the 30 for 30 challenge where the Foundation engaged 30 new partners to contribute at least $1,000. First Citizens Bank provided $30,000 in matching funds to these new partner gifts.

In addition, 13 new funds were established to support scholarships, including six scholarship endowments, three annual scholarships, and four memorial funds. To date, 11 spaces have been named in the Learning Resource Center to support the President’s Innovation Fund, a fund focused on student success and building a 21st century campus.

Please know that these personal investments make positive changes at JCC and for the students it serves today and in the future. I am truly honored to have met so many wonderful, generous people who support the JCC Foundation.

Join me and the Foundation Board as we embark on the next 30 years.

Earl W. Worley, Jr.
The JCC Foundation honored its donors and scholarship recipients Sept. 11 at a Donor Appreciation and Scholarship Recipient luncheon. Approximately 250 scholarship recipients and donors attended the celebration in the Great Hall of the Paul A. Johnston Auditorium. For the 2011-12 academic year, the JCC Foundation awarded nearly 160 scholarships totaling $95,000.

Thirty teams participated in the 17th annual Neal Lancaster-Four Oaks Bank Charity Classic Oct. 7 at the Country Club of Johnston County. The event raised nearly $60,000 for critical areas of funding such as scholarships, program enhancement, and academic enrichment at JCC.

The JCC Foundation kicked off a year-long celebration of the organization’s 30th Anniversary. As part of the anniversary celebration, JCCF established a goal of raising an additional $30,000 in business and corporate support. As of June 30, 2012 over $70,000 had been raised with a significant major gift contributed by First Citizens Bank.

The JCC Foundation held its 2012 spring gala April 19 at The Clubhouse at Portofino in Clayton. The event was hosted by Sandra and Norwood Thompson. The fundraiser raised more than $21,000 to support scholarships, book funds, innovation grants, and program enhancement funds for the College.
