A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

David N. Johnson, Ed.D

2013-14 was an exciting time at JCC.

The college officially turned 45 years old in September of 2014. This fall, we celebrated with many special activities like our Donor Appreciation and Scholarship recipient event, a 1969 tribute concert, and a fun Movie on the Lawn for our campus and the Johnston County community on Halloween. We will continue to commemorate the college’s 45 years of success throughout the upcoming year.

While our history is very important to our four decades of success, we are also progressive at JCC. A few months ago, we rolled out a new brand with a fresh, new logo and launched a redesigned Web site. We believe this new image and enhanced technology will bring us into the 21st century and allow us to move forward in serving our students, employees, donors, alumni, and the community as we strive to create one college with endless opportunities.

This year, we increased our focus on student success. Campus-wide initiatives such as enhanced student orientation and Agree 2 Degree are helping our students achieve their educational goal of receiving a degree, diploma, certificate, or workplace credential before leaving JCC.

We’ve also expanded our health sciences classes and are now offering more nursing assistant and phlebotomy courses at our Cleveland Center in an effort to meet the high demand for these employees in our county. We awarded nearly $650,000 in scholarships, program funds, and grants to students, faculty, and staff this year.

We at JCC value our role in our community. We are grateful for the opportunity we’ve had and will continue to have to make Johnston County a better place.

TRUSTEE CHAIR WINS NATIONAL LEADERSHIP AWARD

Lyn Austin, chair of the Johnston Community College Board of Trustees, received the 2014 Southern Regional Trustee Leadership Award from the Association of Community Colleges.

A resident of Clayton, Austin has served as a member of the JCC Board of Trustees for 18 years. She currently serves as chair of the board, a position she has held for 14 years. Her service on the board began in 1996, and she has served tirelessly and faithfully since that time as an appointee by four different governors of the State of North Carolina.

Austin also serves on the Executive Board of the North Carolina Association of Community College Trustees (NCACCT) and is the chair of the association for 2014-15. She is also a liaison to the State Board of Community Colleges Policy Committee that makes recommendations to the full board regarding statewide policy issues that impact the colleges. She currently serves on the Community College Program Audit Study Committee of the North Carolina General Assembly, which is charged with determining how program audit procedures may be streamlined to minimize the burden on institutions being audited. Austin also serves every year on the committee that selects the NC community college president of the year and outstanding faculty member of the year.

In addition to her community college advocacy, Austin participates in a vast array of civic and volunteer activities. Some of the organizations on which she serves include the Clayton Cultural Arts Foundation, the North Carolina Board of Licensed Professional Counselors, the Women’s Club of Clayton, and the Clayton Chamber of Commerce, which named her Citizen of the Year in 2002.

JCC President David Johnson thanked Austin for her tireless advocacy for community colleges.

"Lyn has been a steadfast champion for JCC and community colleges across our nation for a long time,” Johnson said. “We are so grateful for her passion and dedication to student success, and she is so deserving of this national honor. JCC is able to change lives every day because of Lyn’s leadership and commitment to high quality, educational opportunities.”

The ACCT Association Awards were announced during the ACCT Awards Gala on Friday, October 25, at the Hyatt Regency Chicago in Illinois.

OUTSTANDING STAFFER: WANDA HOWELL

Wanda Howell works hard every day to make sure JCC looks spic and span.

“I try to keep everything clean for everyone, and I try to put a smile on everybody’s face every morning,” Howell says.

Howell is a housekeeper at the College and her meticulous work ethic and dedication to her job are two reasons her colleagues selected her as the recipient of the 2014 Rudolph A. Howell Outstanding Staff Person Award.

“I was so shocked when I learned I received the award,” Howell says. “It was such an honor getting it, and I appreciate everybody that voted for me.”

Howell, a JCC employee for five years, is primarily responsible for making sure the busy Wilson Building, which houses the administrative offices, student services, the student lounge, classrooms and computer labs, always looks its best.

It’s a challenging and often thankless job, for sure, but Howell never complains and always works with a positive attitude. “I love working here, and I love the people that work here,” she says.

Howell received a $1,000 cash award and a reserved parking space on campus for the year.

“Wanda is such a great person and one of the hardest working employees at JCC,” said Ken Mitchell, associate vice president of auxiliary services. “She is full of energy and works non-stop. We are so grateful for all she does for the college.”

Howell lives in Selma with her husband, Jerry. She has two grown children and two grandchildren.
Sheryl Johnson likes to tell her students that no math problem is unsolvable.

“Math is a struggle for a lot of students, so I really enjoy helping them, watching them grow, and seeing them become successful,” Johnson says.

Johnson’s patience and ability to motivate her students is one reason she’s been named the recipient of the 2014 Earl C. and Doris F. Helms Excellence in Teaching Endowment at JCC. Selected by fellow instructors in the JCC Faculty Association, Johnson received a $1,000 stipend in recognition for her excellence in the classroom.

Johnson is the math lab administrator at JCC. A JCC instructor for the past 14 years, she has bachelor degrees in both math and English with a total of 30 years teaching experience in both subjects. “It’s definitely an unusual combination, but it has served me well,” she says.

Johnson said her teaching career has been a rewarding experience.

“It’s very rewarding when students come back to see you and tell what they’re doing, whether they are working or are at a four-year college,” she says. “It makes you feel good that you’ve had a positive impact on their lives.”

In addition to her teaching, Johnson has also been a leader among her peers at the college. She is a former president and current vice president of the JCC Faculty Association, and she has written curriculum and textbooks for college math and English courses. Johnson has also judged senior projects in local high schools, served as director of the Girl Scouts for Johnston County for three years, and is a member of the National Association of Developmental Education (NADE) and the State Employees Association of North Carolina (SEANC).

Instructor Jean Stowers said Johnson is dedicated to education and student performance. “Sheryl is knowledgeable and enthusiastic, and she is always prepared to teach and assist her students,” Stowers said. “With quiet dignity, she also represents her colleagues professionally as an officer in the Faculty Association. An educator, a mentor and a leader, she succeeds in the classroom, the workplace, and the community.”

Johnson said she appreciated the recognition and vote of confidence from her fellow instructors at JCC. “I really like the close knit environment at JCC,” she says. “I enjoy working with my colleagues, and having relationships that allow us to share and support one another.”

Johnson lives in xxxx. She and her husband have four grown children and three grandchildren.
After 18 years of working in the airline industry, Margaret Raynor decided to retire in 2005. She tried several different jobs over the next six years, but she still wasn’t fully satisfied.

“One day my husband and I were sitting around talking, and he suggested I go back to school and pursue a career in the medical field,” Raynor of Smithfield recalled. “At first, I didn’t think that was a good idea, because of my age. I was thinking someone my age would have a hard time focusing, concentrating on school work, and just retaining the material.”

But after a few months of consideration, Raynor, now 47, enrolled at Johnston Community College in January 2011. It didn’t take long for her to excel in the classroom and become a leader at JCC. And that’s the primary reason why she’s JCC’s 2014 recipient of the Academic Excellence Award.

A dean’s list and Phi Theta Kappa student, she is also the treasurer of the Student Government Association, president of the National Society of Leadership and Success, and treasurer of the National Technical Honor Society. A recent recipient of the Governor’s Volunteer Service Award, Raynor will graduate in May with an associate’s degree in medical office administration.

“I’ve had the pleasure of teaching Margaret as well as interacting with her in other activities on campus,” said Paula Parrish, office administration instructor. “She has demonstrated hard work and determination through earning her degree as well as leading her fellow classmates.”

“She is truly an icon for academic excellence here at JCC,” added medical office instructor Jean Stowers.

At JCC, academic excellence award recipients are nominated by faculty or staff and selected on the basis of selected academic criteria, which are consistent with Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society criteria. Fifty-eight students, one from each community college, received academic excellence awards. Raynor will receive a plaque and medallion at graduation for her accomplishment.

Raynor said her success at JCC wouldn’t have been possible without the unwavering support of her husband, Clifford, and adult son, Michael.

“I couldn’t have done it without them in my corner,” she said. “JCC has helped bring out the leader in me. “My experience here has taught me how to be more organized and more responsible. I’m learning something new every time I go to class.”
Johnston Community College celebrated its 2014 graduates with commencement ceremonies May 19 and May 20 in the Paul A. Johnston Auditorium on the main campus.

JCC awarded more than 550 associate degrees and diplomas to students who completed their study in the summer of 2013, fall of 2013, or spring of 2014.

Jackie Ring, chief operating officer of Johnston Health, Clayton, delivered the commencement address to Monday's health sciences graduates. Dr. Ingrid Wicker McCree, director of athletics at North Carolina Central University, gave the general commencement speech at Tuesday's ceremony.

Margaret Raynor, a medical office administration graduate from Smithfield, was recognized as JCC's Academic Excellence Award recipient. Ann Marie Tolar of Benson, who earned an associate degree in arts degree, received the President's Award for her scholastic achievement and leadership. Latifah Nixon of Princeton, who earned an associate in arts degree, received the Citizenship Award for her leadership and service to fellow students.

OUTSTANDING STUDENTS

2013-14 STUDENT AMBASSADORS

JCC selects up-and-coming student leaders each year to serve as its prestigious Student Ambassadors. The students receive paid tuition for the year through private monies given to the College Foundation.

In return, the Student Ambassadors are involved in a number of Foundation special events and student activities on campus to foster their leadership skills. They also participate in several community service projects during the academic year. In 2013-14, JCC's Student Ambassadors participated in a Habitat for Humanity project and assisted with several food, toy, and clothing collection drives for needy individuals during the holiday season.

Johnston Community College in partnership with the Johnston County Chambers of Commerce hosted the Breakfast before Business event Friday, Feb. 28 on the main campus in Smithfield.

Some 150 business and community leaders attended the breakfast, which was sponsored by First Citizens Bank, Four Oaks Bank, and KS Bank.

The College recognized Sona BLW Precision Forge, Inc. as the recipient of its Business and Industry Partner Award for 2013. A Selma manufacturer of forged gears and axle components, Sona has contributed to curriculum development and provided job training opportunities for several of JCC’s workforce training programs.

“We are so appreciative of the training opportunities and industry expertise Sona has provided JCC,” said David Johnson, JCC president. “We look forward to the growth of our partnership with Sona as we continue to work together to enhance our educational programs and to close the skills gap of current and future advanced manufacturing employees.”

Phil Buckley, a national recognized speaker, SEO, digital marketer, connector, and recovering web developer, shared the value of effective Web communication and social media for businesses with the group. SGA president Rudolph Raynor also spoke about the positive impact of his college experience at JCC.

Phillip Tyler, founder of local business Carolina Comfort Air, credits Johnston Community College as the springboard for his business’s success. After taking classes at night while working full time, he has been able to grow his company and bring economic success to the community.

In September 2014, JCC launched an exciting branding campaign, unveiling a new logo and a redesigned Web site.

JCC's current logo had existed since 1999. Because of the growth and change the college has experienced over the past 15 years, marketing initiated an updated brand for JCC. In the spring of 2013, employees and the community were surveyed about the college’s current brand and asked for their suggestions for improving the college’s image.

After gathering presidential input, reviewing the mission, goals, and values of the college, and considering suggestions of JCC employees, the staff at Bouvier-Kelly, a Greensboro marketing firm, created a new logo mark that speaks to the current personality of JCC. They also reviewed the college’s tag line – One College. Endless Opportunities, which had been used for about four years. After considering the conversations and input from leadership and employees, Bouvier-Kelly saw no reason to change the tagline. It works, it blends with the new logo, and it succinctly tells who we are at JCC.

The Johnston Community College brandmark is designed to reflect the intentions, goals, and purpose of our College. The shield shape contains a spiral burst of light design that symbolizes vibrancy and new beginnings. As it is held in the shield, the spiral also creates the recognizable shape of the letter J.

From the central point in the burst of light, there are many lines that extend outward, just as there are many paths of educational and professional opportunity that begin at JCC. The convergence of these lines also represents the culmination of talent and potential that we, the students, faculty, and staff, bring to JCC.

The simple, clean typography and the classic design of the mark reflect the sense of pride we wish to convey while also building a contemporary look that can grow with us into the future. All of these characteristics inherent to our brandmark are inspirational as we move forward in creating one college with endless opportunities.

A brand is more than just a logo. A Web site is an organization’s best marketing tool, so we knew a redesign of our site was a critical element of our new brand. After much research and consideration, about a year ago, we selected OU Campus as our new content management system. OU is user friendly and is used by many colleges and universities across the country.

Over the past year, the web governance team and many other JCC employees have been hard at work planning the design and migrating content from the existing site. The new system fosters a team update approach. About 30 content managers and approvers now have the ability to easily and quickly create, edit, manage, and publish information, photos, and videos. The site has a fresh look and is mobile friendly to better serve our customers. Reorganized navigation and a simple menu structure based on relationships helps current students, future students, alumni and friends, faculty and staff, and the community easily find the information they are looking for about the college.

A final element of the branding campaign was the creation of five heartfelt testimonial videos of students and alumni. The videos incorporate real stories from real people and speak to the positive impact JCC has made on their lives.

JCC is truly one college with endless opportunities.

A MESSAGE FROM THE FOUNDATION PRESIDENT

Jody McLeod

Dear Alumni and Friends,

This letter is bittersweet for me as my presidency ended June 30, 2014, but I feel so very fortunate to have led such an outstanding organization. On behalf of the Foundation Board of Directors, Dr. David Johnson and the College Trustees, I want to express my thanks for your support in helping make this past year successful.

It has been a privilege to serve this fine institution and see the many ways in which JCC touches our communities – whether it is through exceptional instruction, opportunities for cultural and personal enrichment, or witnessing the successes of our alumni in the workforce today.

In February 2014, we kicked off the celebration of JCC’s 45th anniversary at the Foundation’s Breakfast before Business event. It was a privilege to serve during this exciting time in the College’s history, and I can’t wait to see all the great things this institution accomplishes in the next 45 years.

Over the past fiscal year, the Foundation’s assets grew from $6,258,893 to _______ as of June 30, 2014 and ___ funds have been established to support scholarships and the Foundation. These personal investments make positive changes in the lives of JCC students and our community.

Again, thank you for your investment in helping students achieve their dreams. I am honored to have met so many wonderful, generous people who support the College Foundation.

All the best,

Jody McLeod
SEPTMBER 2013
The JCC Foundation honored its donors and scholarship recipients Sept. 13 at a Donor Appreciation and Scholarship Appreciation Luncheon. Approximately 250 scholarship recipients and donors attended the celebration in the Great Hall of the Paul A. Johnston Auditorium. For the 2013-14 academic year, JCC awarded xxxxx in scholarships to more than xxxx students.

OCTOBER 2013
Some 30 teams participated in the 18th annual Neal Lancaster-Four Oaks Bank Charity Classic on Oct. 5 at the Country Club of Johnston County. The event raised nearly $34,000 for critical areas of funding such as scholarships, program enhancement, and academic enrichment at JCC.

APRIL 2014
The Johnston Community College Foundation held its spring fundraiser, An Evening for Education, on Thursday, April 10 at the home of Denton and Jane Lee. The fundraiser generates monies to assist the Foundation in providing scholarships, emergency book funds and academic support services for students, as well as innovation grants and program enhancement funds for faculty and staff.
Harold Keen, chief executive officer of KS Bank in Smithfield, says he got a good accounting basis for his career in the banking industry because of his education at Johnston Community College. He believes community colleges give individuals a great start in higher education and the instruction is just as rigorous as four-year institutions.
